ALL ABOUT MANE

Mane from Armenia says that she is known for her good sense of humor, cheerful and outgoing personality, and excellent listening skills. She has many interests and likes to use her free time effectively. Her list of hobbies is long (and always growing!), but it currently includes cooking, dancing, photography, and listening to music. She also recently discovered a love of reading and would love to receive book recommendations from her host family!

Mane says she has big plans for her future, and—when thinking about her future career—she believes it's important to consider what will help her family, community, and country. With her interest in robotics and math, she plans to study programming and become a specialist. Mane dreams of becoming a UNICEF goodwill ambassador. She can envision herself one day speaking about a topic she is passionate about at the UN!

Mane's teacher says she is...

- Friendly
- Respectful
- Clever

Mane is excited about the opportunity to live with a host family in the US. She looks forward to “improving my English skills, becoming more mature, developing both personally and professionally, making many international friends, and having a loving host family.” She specifically would love to have the opportunity to play basketball, tennis, and further her study in technology. When she returns to Armenia, Mane wants to inspire children from her community to work towards their dreams, as she has worked to achieve her dream of studying in the US! To her host family, Mane says “I’m looking forward to being your family member and spending a great year with you!”
